Internships are among the most valuable learning experiences that a student can have while enrolled at the University of Louisville. By working part-time in an organization that relates to the student's career plans, individuals will gain professional experiences and status that are essential to future success. Students will have the opportunity to apply what they've learned in the classroom, think critically, they will make important networking contacts, and they'll affirm (or refute) career plans. U of L Communication students have previously interned in corporate settings, at advertising and public relations agencies, radio and television stations, magazines, newspapers, non-profit organizations, small businesses, healthcare institutions, and more.

Students may receive 3 credit hours (summer, spring, or fall) by working a minimum of 12 hours per week (minimum 200 total work hours) over the minimum of a 2 month period in an approved internship position (paid or non-paid). Students accepted into the program enroll in Communication 417. Only one additional internship credit hour may be allowed at the discretion of the Department of Communication Internship Director for a different internship position (Comm 317). The grade for the internship is determined by the quality of materials that are submitted at the end of the semester (as outlined on page 3), and by an evaluation from the supervisor at the place of employment. The field supervisor for the internship must hold a position normally involving supervisory responsibilities. Approved positions must include active, substantive supervision so that the student is learning from a professional in the field. Internships typically run over the course of an academic semester or the summer months, but may also overlap semesters through prior arrangement with the Internship Director.

Student internships for credit must be performed in organizations approved in advance by the Internship Director. To avoid disappointment, students should obtain the Internship Director's approval for positions they are seeking, PRIOR to applying for credit. Internship positions must provide substantive, meaningful, new experiences to students in an organization with which the student has not had previous contact, so that the student can have an independent learning experience that includes training and socialization into a new work environment. Accordingly, the Department of Communication will not grant internship credit for past work performance. In addition, students may not do internships for academic credit with organizations for which they have previously worked (or are currently working), nor may students do internships for credit with family-owned/managed companies or under the direction of relatives. And, remote/virtual positions are not eligible for academic credit.

Three hour credit internships for Comm 417 require a minimum of 90 previous credit hours so that students are prepared for their positions and get the maximum benefit from the experience in terms of applied learning and critical thinking. In addition, each internship will have a prerequisite Communication course(s) as outlined on the next page.

Students must approach internships not merely as a "part-time" job or a typical college course. Instead, they must recognize that the internship is intended to be a professional learning experience similar to student teaching. As such, interns have not only academic responsibilities, but also obligations to the organization employing them. Student interns are expected to maintain a high standard of mature and professional conduct at all times as a representative of the Department of Communication and the University of Louisville.

Internship application procedures:

1. Fill out an internship application and turn it in to the Internship Director WITH a current resume and unofficial transcript.
2. Obtain the approval of the Internship Director for credit and register for the course. You'll be notified when you are approved to proceed with telephone registration for this course.
3. Obtain your position and get approval of it from the Internship Director PRIOR to starting the position. It is the student's responsibility to obtain a position that will be approved by the Department. The Department and/or Internship Director do not obtain positions for students.
4. Attend an orientation session prior to starting internship.

Internship course requirements:

Once you have been approved for the program, obtained your position, and attended an orientation session, you are ready to start work. In order to get academic credit at the end of the semester, you'll need to turn in the following items to the Internship Director (details discussed at the orientation session).

1. An internship contract that serves as the formal agreement between you, the sponsoring organization, and the Department of Communication Internship Director. It also provides a basis for evaluation of your performance during the internship. This typed contract will be signed and dated once all parties agree to its contents.
2. A work log summarizing daily activities, project progress, likes and dislikes, observations, accomplishments, and lessons learned. This document should make overt connections between work activities and Communication concepts/courses. You should begin this document immediately when you start work and then get in the habit of updating (like a diary) on a daily basis. You might want to open a word processing file on a USB drive and use that as your work log diary.
3. A portfolio of work completed while on the internship. Includes written content, as well as evidence of events/materials/presentations that you coordinate or are involved with in some manner. You may re-obtain this portfolio after the Director has reviewed your materials.
4. A 6+ page, typed, double-spaced paper that summarizes your internship experience.

Grade:

Your grade for the internship will be determined as follows:

- * Supervisor Evaluation: 50%
- * Reflective Final Paper: 20%
- * Work Diary: 10%
- * Portfolio: 10%
- * Professionalism: 10%

Obtaining your internship:

Use all available means/resources. Check with the University of Louisville Department of Communication Web site (comm.louisville.edu) and subscribe to our Comm-Announce email newsletter (check Department Web site to subscribe). Other openings may be available through the Cards Career Link system operated by UofL Career Services (louisville.edu/career)

You are encouraged to utilize you own resources, contacts, and ingenuity to obtain internships. It is acceptable (and encouraged) to independently and aggressively target a group of companies/agencies/media outlets for internship positions. Be sure to consult with the Director to make sure the positions you are seeking will be approved.

Positions should be sought a minimum of 6 weeks prior to the desired start of the internship and in some cases longer (TV stations and ad agencies for example). However, do realize that this course is flexible and unlike any other class that you've had at UofL. If you do not obtain a position until several weeks into the semester, you are allowed to work in a position after the conclusion of the semester to meet the minimum 200 work hour work guideline.

Regardless of the source for an internship, a detailed job description must be approved in advance by the Internship Director before a student starts earning academic credit.
